

GUIDING PRINCIPLES

We believe housing is a basic human right and that individuals cannot achieve stability until they are housed first.

We serve those facing or experiencing the traumatic effects of homelessness with dignity and respect.

We work relentlessly to support our clients and to pursue innovative solutions to prevent and end homelessness.

We are progressive, proactive, transparent and intentional in our thinking, words, and actions.

We incorporate diversity and inclusion in our client work, our leadership, our staff, our volunteers, and the communities we serve.

We will lead and influence the effort to end homelessness through collaborative relationships that achieve this goal.

We achieve measurable impact and know that leveraging data and targeting our resources produce the greatest outcomes.